
Tax-Free Childcare Scheme

At the end of April 2017, the new Tax-Free Childcare scheme was launched by the government.

Eligible parents will open an online childcare account, the government will pay in an extra 25%. So if £80 is paid into the account, the government will automatically add £20. The maximum government payments are £2,000 per child can be met by £8,000 of payments by the parents and £2,000 by the government.

For a disabled child, the maximum top-up payments are £4,000.

How much parents pay into their Tax-Free Childcare account, and when, is up to them.

Who can qualify for Tax-Free Childcare?

Parents need to be 'working parents' paying for 'registered childcare' for children under 12 (or under 17 for disabled children). If parents are not living together, the qualifying parent depends upon with whom the child usually lives.

The main criteria for a parent are:

- Earns on average at least £120 a week
- Earns less than £100,000 a year
- Not receiving other support for Childcare such as Child Tax Credit or Universal Credit.

If you have a partner, they also need to be working and satisfy the criteria above.

It is possible for an individual who is not the parent to qualify if the child usually lives with them. The income criteria would apply to that individual (and their partner).

A person is your partner if you're:

- married or in a civil partnership, and live together in the same household or
- a couple who live together as if you're married or in a civil partnership.

Registered childcare

Only childcare providers registered or approved by a UK regulator can sign up to receive Tax-Free Childcare payments. Parents will be able to check online who is registered for the Tax-Free scheme.

Parents will send payments online from their Tax-Free Childcare account to the bank account of the registered childcare provider. Therefore when a provider receives a payment from a parent, this will include both their payment and the government contribution.

Employer Supported Childcare

Some employers run an Employer Supported Childcare scheme.

An employee and their partner (if applicable) cannot benefit from both an Employer Supported Childcare scheme and the Tax-Free Childcare scheme. However employees are free to choose between the schemes if already in an Employer Supported Childcare scheme or join such a scheme before April 2018.

Employees will need to decide what is best for them. There are winners and losers when the two schemes are compared and for some, this will be a difficult choice to make.

30 hours free childcare

The government is introducing an extension to the current schemes available in England for free childcare for three and four year olds. The current scheme provides 570 hours of free early education or childcare over 38 weeks of the year (typically taken as 15 hours a week over 38 weeks). It is available for all three and four year olds. The 30 hours scheme potentially extends the entitlement to an additional 570 hours. However not all children will be entitled to receive extra hours. The criteria for the extension are similar to the criteria that apply for the Tax- Free Childcare scheme – for example the requirement for parents to be working and not earning above £100,000 a year.

The scheme will begin in September 2017 but eligible parents can apply for the Tax-Free Childcare and the 30 hours schemes through one online application. See link below.

New government website – Childcare Choices

The government has recently launched a website – Childcare Choices – which guides parents through the various ways help is, or will be available. Please see www.childcarechoices.gov.uk

Currently parents with a child under four on 31 August 2017 or disabled can apply through the Childcare Choices site. Parents will be able to apply for all their children at the same time, when their youngest child becomes eligible.

Other parents can request to receive an email from the government as to when they are able to apply. The link is also available on the Childcare Choices site. All eligible parents will be able to join the scheme by the end of 2017.
